[Edited by The American Party].

NOTICE—There will be an American Mass Convention and a Rally at Brigham City Saturday, October 20th, 1906. The Convention will be held at the Opera House at 10 o'clock a. m., and the Rally in the evening at the same place. The band will be in attendance, the American candidate for Congress, the candidate for Judge, and Hon. A. J. Weber and others will deliver addresses. All Americans are invited.

Recall that the American Party has not drawn a line anywhere. It has been drawn for us. About the time of the division on party lines, the quorum of the twelve adopted a rule that members of the quorum of the apostles, presidents of seventies, presidents of stakes and bishops of wards should stay out of politics least jealousies and ill feelings might arise. They were supposed to devote all their time to the church; they were supposed to pour oil on the troubled waters; they were salaried officials of the church; held their offices at the pleasure of their superiors and no member of the church was permitted to find fault with them. It wasn't the American Party that made the rule. Then three months and two days after statehood, the rule was changed so as to permit them to enter politics provided they took "counsel" and were duly authorized to do so.

The rule should be either lived up to and all these high officials given a chance to enter politics or they should stay out of politics. The way it is now, the leaders can permit what men they see fit to serve the state and they can absolutely prevent a man from serving the state.

The American Party is not striving to exclude any person from the exercise of his political rights. It simply insists that the leaders cannot select the officers who shall serve the state. The right belongs to the people.

Inasmuch as the leaders of the church have vowed to God, to the people of the United States and to the people of Utah that they will not interfere in politics, it is the desire of the American Party to help them keep their covenants.

The covenants were in substance that the laws should be obeyed, that there should be no interference in politics or business, and that high officials should stay out of politics.

Based upon those promises statehood came as a gift from forty-four other states, the temples were returned, prosecutions ceased and the era of peace and good will dawned.

The division on party lines took place about fifteen years ago, and the boon of statehood was granted in 1896. Is that giving them time enough to ascertain whether or not the promises will be kept? Yet on Sept. 28, 1906, in Apostle Smoot's official organ it says: "But there is the complaint that the Mormon church interferes in politics. It is current history that the Mormon church, through the influence of its first president, did interfere in the politics of Utah by aiding and assisting in the election of Tom Kearns. He believed it would be best for the state to be represented by a gentleman, and he may have been influenced by the known fortune that Kearns possessed, and which he had won in the state. There may have been other considerations."

The new Pure Food and Drug Law will mark it on the label of every Cough Cure containing Opium, Chloroform, or any other stupefying or poisonous drug. But it passes Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure as made for 20 years, entirely free. Dr. Shoop all along has bitterly opposed the use of all opiates or narcotics. Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure is absolutely safe even for the youngest babe—and it cures, it does not simply suppress. Get a safe and reliable Cough Cure, by simply insisting on having Dr. Shoop's. Let the law be your protection. We cheerfully recommend and sell it. All Dealers. 210 fluenced by the known fortune that Kearns possessed, and which he had won in the state. There may have been other considerations."

According to this admission a general election is turned into what might be called a public auction. What do you think of it? The only thing that can be done now is for the people to maintain their honor; it is for the people to maintain their pledges. It has been determined that no one else can be relied upon. Citizens, for the sake of your wife, for the sake of your children, for the sake of your state which you love so well—vote to keep the faith and VOTE DOWN THE COVENANT BREAKER.

MEN AND WOMEN OF BOX ELDER COUNTY—When you vote put your mark up by the "American Flag"—that flag represents the government that gave you your homesteads, that government which is the freest and the grandest in the world. By your vote you will be saying to that government—I am not guilty of the sin of ingratitude. You will be saying to that government—I love my country, I did not make any false promises to get the boon of statehood, I did not make any false promises upon which the temples and other church property was returned and I did not make any false promises upon which amnesty was obtained and the era of peace and good will dawned.

When the tip of a dog's nose is cold and moist, that dog is not sick. A feverish dry nose means sickness with a dog. And so with the human lips. Dry, cracked and colorless lips mean feverishness, and are as well ill appearing. To have beautiful, pink, velvet-like lips, apply at bedtime a coating of Dr. Shoop's Green Salve. It will soften and heal any skin ailment. Get a free, trial box, at our store, and be convinced. Large nickel capped glass jars, 35 cents. All dealers.

Beware of Russian Thistle.

Should Be Ecterninated "Now."

This Weed Has Taken Up Its Abode
in Many Parts of Our State.

A very obnoxious plant seems to have gained a foothold in the soil of various parts of this state. At the normal school of the University of Utah, the classes in nature study began this fall with a study of the various weeds that infest the fields, the dooryards, and also the open spaces of unclaimed land.

When the division of pigweeds and saltworts was reached, the professor asked the students to keep a lookout for a certain weed troublesome in many parts of the country, and known as the Russian thistle, or tumbleweed. The plant was described to the students, and presently from various localities specimens of a suspicious looking but soft and almost velvety plant were brought in, which were pronounced to be the dreaded thistle or tumbleweed of the Russian steppes.

The true nature of this species soon became manifest. In the course of two weeks the plant began to ripen. The soft, sharp-pointed leaves become stiff and rigid, and the specimens now bristle all over with spiny prickles; so that, while in its earlier stages of growth, the plant can readily be pulled up by the roots, at the time of maturity, it can hardly be seized by the naked hand on account of its leaves now stiffened into veritable spines. This weed is an illustration of an old proverb in a new form—destroy the evil in its incipency and the task is light enough; but let it fully develop, and its eradication is difficult or even impossible.

The situation is now before the farmers of Utah and the land owners everywhere. This plant is attaining a foothold in Utah, and it should be relentlessly eradicated. Prof. Paul, director of the nature work at the university, says that the plant has been in Utah only a few years, the first specimen, apparently, that was noticed by anyone here having been found by Dr. Orson Howard curator of the university museum, about three years ago. At that time, the doctor found one of the plants in the vicinity of Fort Douglas. Hopes were then entertained that the weed would not find our soil and climate congenial to its spread and development. But the result is otherwise; for today the plant is reported at many places, especially along the railroad tracks. Principal McKnight has observed it in southern Utah; Prof. Paul has found it in Idaho; and students bring daily to the nature class branches of it from various parts of the east bench in this city. The plant appears to be spreading rapidly, and requires the careful work of all those who discover it, to rid the soil of a pest that once established usurps the land and even dispossesses the owners of the soil.

It was probably in 1873 that the weed first appeared in this country. At that time a colony of immigrants came over from southern Russia and located in South Dakota. They brought with them a small quantity of flax seed, and sowed it in the soil of their new home. When it came up, it was somewhat mixed with a slender, reddish weed familiar enough to the peasants, who did not, however, take the trouble to destroy these weeds. Perhaps they did not know that in their old home in Russia, this weed had long been known as one of the most noxious of vegetable pests, and that extensive areas of land about the Caspian sea had been abandoned by farmers because this weed had literally driven them out. At any rate, all eyes were blind to the menace implied in the appearance of this vegetable warrior, and its plants were permitted to go to seed. In a few years it had extended beyond the South Dakota hills and had reached the plains. Here its destructive

An Awful Cough Cured.
"Two years ago our little girl had a touch of pneumonia, which left her with an awful cough. She had spells of coughing, just like one with the whooping cough and some thought she would not get well at all. We got a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, which acted like a charm. She stopped coughing and got stout and fat," writes Mrs. Ora Hussard, Brubaker, Ill. This remedy is for sale by Ritter Bros. Drug Co."

career began. Like savages on the war-path, these weeds were driven before the wind, until in a few years they had spread into North Dakota, Iowa and Nebraska. During the next few years the plant invaded Minnesota, Wisconsin, Illinois, Ohio and Colorado, and has recently engaged the serious attention of the legislatures of various states in vain efforts to get rid of it. Now that it has taken hold in Utah, there is only one safe and rational thing to do—to kill it out and to "do it now."

The weed resembles our own bushy tumbleweeds, but has smaller and more acute leaves and stems a little longer, thinner and more arched inwards than in our species. The Russian thistle begins to grow as a simple and inoffensive plant with slender and succulent leaves and branches. As the plant grows older the branches spread out and the leaves harden into spines. The full grown specimens may reach a diameter of five feet, and most of the dry bushes are somewhat spherical in outline. The dried plant is readily broken off from the root and then rolls before every wind, scattering its seed as it travels. A large plant is said to contain 200,000 seeds, and the plants grow so rapidly as to exclude practically all other forms of vegetation.—Deseret News, Oct. 11.

Torments of Tetter and Eczema Allayed.
The intense itching characteristic of eczema, tetter and like skin diseases is instantly allayed by applying Chamberlain's Salve and many severe cases have been permanently cured by its use. For sale by Ritter Bros. Drug Co.
